Power of Director-General

Merchant

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The Merchant Shipping Act, 1958 (the 1958 Act) was enacted to foster the development and ensure the efficient maintenance of an Indian mercantile marine in a manner best suited to serve the national interests and establish a National Shipping Board and to provide for the registration, certification, safety and security of Indian ships. The 1958 Act contains 561 sections, as a result of various amendments carried out in the Act from time to time.

2. The merchant shipping industry has experienced significant changes internationally in recent years, presenting various challenges to Indian shipping. To address these challenges and promote ease of doing business, reforms in the 1958 Act became essential. These reforms include, inter alia, to reduce compliance burden while improving operational efficiency; enhance the quality and quantity of tonnage under Indian flag to strengthen India's presence in the global shipping market; improve the rights, privileges, and protections for seafarers, ensuring their welfare and dignity; ensure the safety and security of vessels and life at sea by adhering to safety protocols; prevent marine pollution and safeguard the marine environment; provide for maritime liabilities and compensation mechanisms to address contingencies effectively; align with global best practices by adopting India's obligations under international conventions comprehensively; boost the sector's attractiveness as an investment destination by creating a conducive regulatory environment and promoting transparency and accountability in the shipping industry. These reforms aim to modernise the sector, enhance its competitiveness, and align it with global standards to meet evolving international demands.

3. In view of the above, it has become imperative to repeal the Merchant Shipping Act, 1958, and to provide for contemporaneous, futuristic and dynamic legislation, namely, the Merchant Shipping Bill, 2024 to meet the requirements of India as an emerging economy. The Merchant Shipping Bill, 2024, inter alia, seeks to provide for the following, namely:—

(i) expanding the eligibility criteria for ownership of the vessels and increasing tonnage under the Indian flag;

(ii) the registration of a foreign vessel chartered on a bareboat charter cum demise contract by an Indian charterer in order to expand opportunities for international trade and increasing Indian tonnage; temporary registration of vessels seeking to be recycled in India; and granting provisional certificate of registration to an Indian vessel;

(iii) supervise and monitor the maritime education and training leading to grant of certificate of competency or certificate of proficiency to facilitate Indian seafarers to work onboard vessels;

(iv) adopting the Maritime Labour Convention regulations in the Bill through the rules to be made by the Central Government to bolster the rights and welfare of seafarers; and regulation of recruitment and placement service agencies;

(v) the constitution of a body to be notified by the Central Government which would be responsible for conducting regulatory and oversight functions relating to security of vessels and port facilities;

(vi) to provide for enforcement of pollution prevention standards, including measures for containment of pollution and reporting of incidents threatening to cause pollution of air, marine environment, any part of coasts or coastal waters;

(vii) to provide for the survey, audit and certification, ensuring compliance of Indian as well as foreign vessels with standards of compliance and certificates mandated under international conventions;

(viii) to provide for maritime liability and compensation in claims arising out of collision of vessels and accident at sea leading to damage or loss of vessel, cargo or property; limitation of liability for damages in respect of certain claims; and constitution of limitation fund;

(ix) to provide for marine incident and emergency response in order to provide time effective and efficient emergency responses to a marine incident;

(x) to provide for investigation and inquiries on marine casualties;

(xi) to make provisions for wreck and salvage operations so as to ensure timely and minimal damage to lives, the marine environment and the cargo;

(xii) to provide for the safety, security, prevention of pollution and mandating insurance to sailing vessels, fishing vessels and vessels whose net tonnage is less than fifteen and is engaged solely in coasting trade of India;

(xiii) to make provisions for penalties and procedure and to empower the principal officer to impose a penalty against certain contraventions;

(xiv) to empower the Central Government to pass directions to port authorities or State Maritime Board or any other authority or agency, to render assistance in respect of abandoned vessels, which are abandoned on or near the coast of India or within the coastal waters;

(xv) to empower the principal officer to take action against vessels that are unsafe, which pose a risk to safety of life or environment;

(xvi) to empower the Central Government to take charge and detain vessels within India or in coastal waters, as a vessel without nationality, if such vessel is not legally entitled to fly the flag of a State or has lost such right;

(xvii) to empower the Central Government to make such provisions not inconsistent with the provisions of the Bill, as appear to it to be necessary, for removing the difficulty before the expiry of a period of three years from the date of enactment of the Bill;
